

The crew arrives at the work site. Mostly uphill, carrying trail signs, we're tired already!

Now let's cut in the upper connection to Reroute TC03. Get er' done!

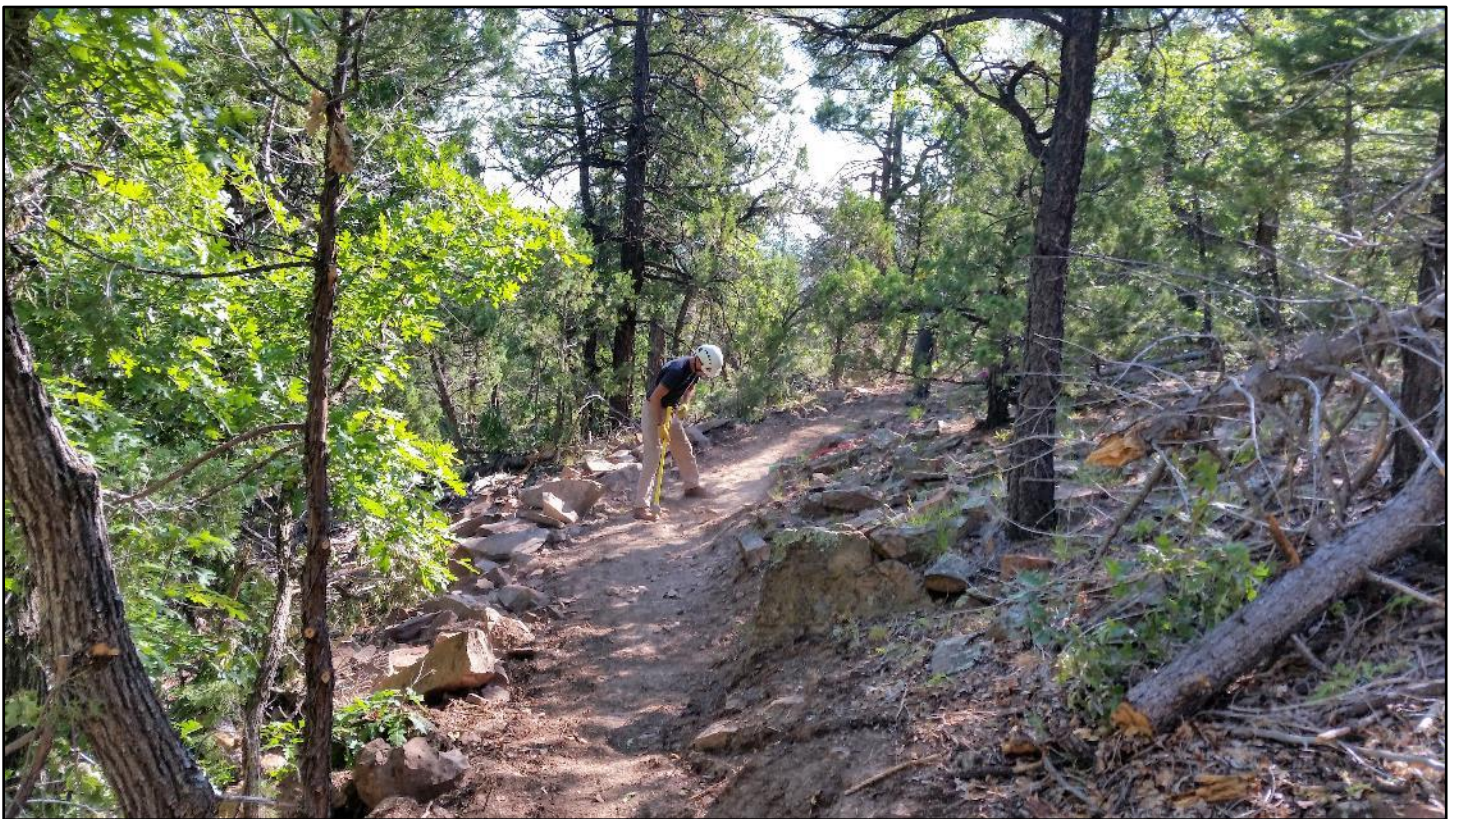

Part of the crew pitches in on the upper connection and opens up the trail corridor.

Final clean-up on the reroute's upper connection. The obliterated user trail is to the right.

Section finished. Grab a break then head down to the next task.

Nothing is more fun than taking a sledge hammer to some toe-stubbing rocks.

There is always plenty of detail work needed to complete new trail.

The boss starts to cut in the new Elk Track connection to Madera Locura.

Elk Track comes in from the right to Madera Locura. Now we just need the trail signs.

These two guys cut in the lower connection of Section TC03 on Madera Locura.

Final grooming on the lower connection. Making the dust fly.

Lower connection is complete. Ready to ride and hike! Just need some rain to pack it in.

This week the dotted gayfeather started blooming.

Sitting down to lunch, clouds started building, thunder started booming, so we quickly headed home.
